15 SUMMARY OF APPLICATION

16 This lawsuit was filed under Labor Code §2698 et seq. against Defendant, 17 Skorprios Technologies, Inc. ("Defendant"). The lawsuit filed contained individual 18 claims and PAGA claims. The PAGA claim is brought on behalf of other similarly 19 situation employees to Mark Gill and Denise Fischer¹, who were alleged to have 20 been denied payment of vacation wages due at separation, therefore, entitling those 21 employees to penalties under Labor Code §203. The PAGA portion of the lawsuit 22 has been brought for penalties pursuant to California Labor Code §2698 et seq. There 23 are approximately twenty-four (24) aggrieved employees at issue (Declaration. of 24 Charles P. Boylston in Support of Plaintiff's Application for Preliminary Approval 25
26

27 ¹ Ms. Fischer is an additional class representative. The parties have agreed to 28 permit an amended complaint to be filed including Ms. Fischer as a class representative solely for the purposes of settlement. If the matter is not resolved the parties are to meet and confer on amending the complaint or otherwise deciding how the matter is to proceed.

1 of PAGA Settlement, ¶ 5) (hereinafter, unless otherwise noted, referred to as Decl.
2 of Charles P. Boylston).

3 Plaintiff's counsel and Defense counsel have both had numerous discussions 4 regarding the claims in the above-entitled matter. After the Parties discussed the 5 matter in detail, information was exchanged, including spreadsheets showing by 6 identification number the aggrieved employees, arguably the amounts they would be 7 owed as penalties, including amounts available under Labor Code §203, as well as 8 amounts Defendants alleged would offset any penalties based upon insurance 9 payments made on behalf of those aggrieved employees during the time they were 10 furloughed. (Decl. of Charles P. Boylston ¶5).

11 The Parties remain in disagreement as to the availability under Labor Code 12 §203 for penalties in circumstances wherein employees have been furloughed, and 13 in particular, where those employees have received insurance benefits during the 14 time that they were furloughed. After further discussions and in the interest of 15 resolving the matter, the Parties agreed to resolve the alleged aggrieved employee 16 claims, in exchange for the obligations, promises, terms and conditions, as set forth 17 in the settlement agreement which is attached to the Declaration of Charles P.
18 Boylston as "Exhibit No. 1".

19 Plaintiff's counsel first notified the LWDA of its claim on March 29, 2024.
20 (Decl. of Charles P. Boylston ¶ 7). Following that date, an additional notice was 21 sent to the LWDA regarding a proposed additional class representative, Denise 22 Fischer, on September 18, 2024. (Decl. of Charles P. Boylston ¶ 8). At no point 23 through the preparation of this application has the LWDA advised that it would 24 intervene.

25 On December 10, 2024, the LWDA further indicated it had no claim as to the 26 actual Labor Code §203 penalties, and that only the PAGA penalties collected in this 27 matter that would otherwise go to the state (Ca. Labor Code § 2699) would be subject 28 to the 65/35% split. (Decl. of Charles P. Boylston ¶ 10).

1 On May 15, 2025, Plaintiff's counsel uploaded to the LWDA electronic filing 2 portal, Plaintiff's signed joint stipulation of settlement and release under the Private 3 Attorneys General Act and California Labor Code §2698 et seq. (Decl. of Charles P.
4 Boylston ¶ 11). Plaintiff's counsel has not received notice that the LWDA would 5 intervene. On May 15, 2025, Plaintiff's counsel uploaded to the LWDA electronic 6 filing portal a copy of this entire Application and the Application for order proving 7 reasonable attorney fees. Plaintiff's counsel has not received notice that the LWDA 8 would intervene.

9 Pursuant to this court's orders, the settlement documentation in this case was 10 to be submitted on or before May 16, 2025. Plaintiff did submit this application on 11 an ex parte basis on May 16, 2025. On May 28, 2025, the Court denied hearing the 12 motion on an ex parte basis. Therefore, Plaintiff is filing this application as well as 13 Plaintiff's counsel's motion for attorney fees, through regularly noticed motions.
14 Throughout this matter, Plaintiff's counsel and Defense counsel have agreed to all 15 the terms and furthermore, Defendant has specifically represented that they will not 16 oppose this application or application for approval of reasonable attorney fees.
17 Based on the age of the case, the lack of intervention by LWDA, the denial of 18 entitlement to the majority of penalties in this matter, and the lack of opposition to 19 the applications, and agreement as set forth in the stipulation, counsel respectfully 20 requests this court consider these papers

21 The Gross Settlement Value of the proposed Settlement is $51,500.00 which 22 is broken down as follows:

- 23 • $20,125.00 to be distributed in accordance with the stipulated 24 settlement agreement to aggrieved employees regarding individual 25 claims;
- 26 • $500.00 to be distributed to Representative Plaintiff Gill as an 27 individual enhancement;

- 1 • $500.00 to be distributed to Representative Fischer as an individual
- 2 enhancement
- 3 • $23,500.00 Attorneys' Fees and Costs of suit;
- 4 • $6,875.00 as penalties under Ca. Labor Code §2699(i) further
- 5 allocated as:
 - 6 ■ (65%) of the PAGA Settlement shall be awarded and
 - 7 assigned to the LWDA as penalties under the Private
 - 8 Attorneys General Act for a total to be awarded to the
 - 9 LWDA of $4,468.75;
 - 10 ■ 35% of the PAGA portion of the settlement shall be
 - 11 disbursed as individual settlement amounts to the
 - 12 aggrieved employees for a total of $2,406.25 of the
 - 13 PAGA penalties to be distributed to the aggrieved
 - 14 employees in a pro rata portion as further detailed in
 - 15 the stipulated settlement agreement.

16 The individual penalties under Labor Code § 203 are being distributed as 17 further set forth in the settlement agreement essentially at a pro rata basis to the 18 employees considering the entire settlement amount, the employee's portion of that 19 settlement amount, and potential Labor Code §203 penalties if the matter was fully 20 litigated and the employees were deemed to have claims for Labor Code § 203 21 penalties. The proposed distribution further considers an offset by any amounts the 22 employees may owe the employer is repayment for insurance benefits during the 23 time period those employees were furloughed.

24 II.

25 CONTROLLING AUTHORITY

26 PAGA "authorizes an employee to bring an action for civil penalties on behalf 27 of the state against his or her employer for Labor Code violations committed against 28 the employee and fellow employees." Iskanian v. CLS Trans. Los Angeles (2014) 59

1 Cal. 4th 348, 360. “To compensate for the lack of [a]dequate financing of essential 2 labor law enforcement,’ the California legislature enacted PAGA to permit 3 aggrieved employees to as private attorneys general to collect civil penalties for 4 violations of the Labor Code.” Sakkab v. Luxottica (9th Cir. 2015) 803 F.3d 425.

5 Statutory penalties would be calculated according to Labor Code 2699(f)(2): 6 If, at the time of the alleged violation, the person employs one or more employees, 7 the civil penalty is one hundred ($100.00) for each aggrieved employee per pay 8 period for the initial violation and two hundred dollars ($200.00) for each aggrieved 9 employee per pay period for each subsequent violation.

10 “The superior court shall review and approve any settlement of any civil 11 action filed pursuant to [PAGA].” California Labor Code §26991(1). In so doing, 12 the court must consider whether the proposed “PAGA settlement is fair and adequate 13 in view of the purposes and policies of the statue.” O’Connor v. Uber Techs., Inc., 14 201 F. Supp. 3D 1110, 1135 (N.D. Cal. 2016). Those purposes and policies include 15 “benefit[ing] the public by augmenting the state’s enforcement capabilities, 16 encouraging compliance with Labor Code provisions, and deterring 17 noncompliance.” Id. at 1132-33; Accord Syed v. M-I LLC, 2017 WL 714367, at *13 18 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 22, 2017) (concluding “the settlement amount related to plaintiffs’ 19 PAGA claims is fair, reasonable, and adequate in light of the public policy goals of 20 PAGA.”).

21 In deciding whether the settlement was “fair and adequate,” the Flores court 22 looked at how the parties divvied up the civil penalties under Section 2699(i) of the 23 California Labor Code. Flores at 1076-77. As the court felt the parties’ divisions of 24 penalties was fair and adequate pursuant to the statute, the court approved the 25 settlement. Id.

2 DISCUSSION

3 The Parties reached the terms of their proposed settlement agreement 4 following the exchange of extensive information, employment records, substantial 5 legal research and analysis, and multiple negotiations between Plaintiff's counsel 6 and Defense. The Parties submit that the proposed settlement of PAGA penalties and 7 the potential Labor Code §203 penalties are fair, adequate, and reasonable.

8 A. THE NATURE AND SCOPE OF THE ALLEGED VIOLATIONS

9 This lawsuit alleges Labor Code violations which triggered penalties under 10 the Private Attorneys General Act statute. Plaintiff alleges that Defendant failed to 11 pay employees vacation wages due at the time of separation of employment. The 12 aggrieved employees were all furloughed without receiving at the time, vacation 13 wages which have been accrued, but not used. Employees were furloughed for 14 various periods of time, and some were eventually brought back to work and given 15 their vacation benefits, others were ultimately formerly terminated at which time, 16 Defendants have represented that those employees were paid all vacation wages due 17 and owing.

18 Under California law, separation of employment, even if it is not the 19 termination can trigger the deadline pursuant to California Labor Code §227.3 to pay 20 outstanding wages. See Campos v. Employment Development Department (1982)
21 183 Cal.Rptr. 637 noting that an employee who is furloughed with no contractual 22 right to return to work is best treated as having been terminated. See also the Division 23 of Labor Standards Enforcement Opinion Letter 1996.05.30 which states that 24 separation of employment triggering the deadline to pay unused PTO occurs when 25 the employ has been furloughed or laid off and is unlikely to return within the same 26 pay period.

27 In addition, Denise Fischer alleges that even at the time that vacation wages 28 were paid, there were unlawful deductions and or failure to pay all wages owed. The

1 LWDA notice for both Mark Gill and Denise Fischer are attached to the Declaration
2 of Charles P. Boylston as “Exhibits No. 2” and Exhibit No. 3”, further setting forth 3 the specific claims being made.

4 B. ANALYSIS OF POTENTIAL LIABILITY, ON A REPRESENTATIVE
5 BASIS

6 The catalyst of this litigation concerns allegations that Plaintiff and the non-7 party class members were not paid all wages due at separation of employment. The 8 aggrieved employees, however, were mostly provided insurance benefits during the 9 entire time they were off on furlough. Defendants have argued that if those 10 employees were actually separated or if the furloughs were to be deemed at 11 separation of employment, those employees were not supposed to be receiving 12 health insurance benefits, and therefore, any penalties owed would be offset by the 13 health insurance benefit pay. This results in some of the aggrieved employees 14 potentially having to owe Defendant more than what they would recover under 15 Labor Code §203 penalties.

16 The settlement agreed to by the parties provides for payment of reasonable 17 penalties under the California Private Attorneys General Act based on the number 18 of aggrieved employees affected by the policies and provisions. The court has 19 discretion to reduce the award of PAGA penalties pursuant to Labor Code 20 §2699(e)(2). The total amount sought by way of the settlement agreement with 21 regard to the PAGA portion of the lawsuit is $6,875.00. In an effort to resolve any 22 of the outstanding claims relating to the alleged vacation violation, the Parties have 23 also agreed to a substantial amount distributed amongst aggrieved employees who 24 would allegedly be owed some amount of individual penalties even after their 25 recovery would be offset by the insurance payments made by the employer.

26 This settlement avoids the risks and costs of lengthy litigation on these issues.
27 The employees do appear to have been paid, by Defendant, all PTO they were owed.
28 Therefore, litigation in this matter would solely be about penalties associated with

1 the failure to pay those wages timely. This settlement further eliminates any 2 potential liability employees might have for insurance payments made by Defendant 3 after the furlough had become, at least constructively, a separation of employment.
4 In the absence of this agreement, it is Defendant's position that some of the class 5 members would end up actually owing Defendant money.

6 Based on the above factors, it is Plaintiff's counsel's opinion that the 7 settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable.

8 C. THE ALLOCATION OF PENALTIES, AND RELEASE OF CLAIMS

9 While Labor Code § 2699(l) requires a court to "review and approve any 10 penalties sought as part of a proposed settlement agreement," it does not provide any 11 exact guidance from the state of California as to what specifically is to be reviewed.
12 Given the significant amount of penalties agreed to and the deterrence of future 13 Labor Code violations, Plaintiff submits the settlement meets all known grounds for 14 approval.

15 Courts that have weighed in on the review of a PAGA settlement have held 16 that the court must consider whether the proposed "PAGA settlement is fair and 17 adequate in view of the purpose and policies of the statute." O'Conner v. Uber 18 Techs., Inc., 201 F. Supp. 3d 1110, 1135 (N.D. Cal. 2016).

19 Those purposes and policies include "benefit[ing] the public by augmenting 20 the state's enforcement capabilities, encouraging compliance with Labor Code 21 provisions, and deterring noncompliance." Id. at 1132033; Accord Syed v. M-1 LLC, 22 2017 WL 714367, at *13 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 22, 2017) (concluding "the settlement 23 amount related to plaintiffs' PAGA claims is fair, reasonable, and adequate in light 24 of the public policy goals of PAGA.").

25 Here the purposes of encouraging the compliance and deterring non-26 compliance have been met.

27 Defendant, and its counsel, deserve credit for their willingness to negotiate 28 and reach a resolution rather than require the Parties to engage in extensive litigation,

1 delaying any recovery by the aggrieved non-parties and Plaintiff. Following arms-
2 length negotiations, the Parties have reached a proposed settlement that includes a 3 settlement payment to resolve claims for penalties under PAGA as well as penalties 4 under Labor Code § 203 potentially available to those aggrieved members. (Decl. of 5 Charles P. Boylston ¶ 13).

6 Here, the Parties seek to allocate $6,875.00 of the total settlement to the 7 PAGA claims. The LWDA will receive 65% of the $6,875.00 (Decl. of Charles P.
8 Boylston ¶ 15). The remaining 35% will be disbursed as individual settlement 9 amounts to the aggrieved employees. An additional amount of $20,125.00 will be 10 distributed amongst the aggrieved employees as further set forth in the settlement 11 agreement. If the matter were litigated for each individual claim, Counsel estimates 12 the most any individual class member could recover would be approximately 13 $7,700.00. On average, recovery would be the most a class member could recover 14 less than $1,500.00 when we offset the penalties by potential charges relating to 15 health benefits provided. Some employees would actually end up owing the 16 company money. Under this agreement the least any employee will receive will be 17 $100.00 (for those employees who received more in health benefits than the penalty 18 they would recover under Ca. Labor Code §203) with a majority of the employees 19 recovering over $1,700.00.

20 Plaintiff's counsel, Charles P. Boylston, has been practicing employment 21 litigation for 25 years and contends that the amounts set forth are reasonable and 22 sufficient to fairly compensate the LWDA and the aggrieved employees balancing 23 out the potential risks and costs of litigation. (Decl. of Charles P. Boylston ¶ 2-3).
24 The settlement will resolve the employee's claims with regard to the vacation pay 25 and any potential PAGA claims.

26 ///

27 ///

1 IV.

2 CONCLUSION

3 The Parties respectfully request that the court approve their proposed PAGA 4 settlement.
